History of the House

SMITH, KIVITS, WILSON HOME
1124 South Center Street
Terre Haute, Indiana

SERVICE LEAGUE OF UNION HOSPITAL, INC. DESIGNERS SHOW HOUSE - 1987

A three-story Farrington Grove residence, built in 1906 and admired for its expansive porch and adjoining portico which once sheltered one of Terre Haute's first electric cars, has been selected as the 1987 Designers Show House.

Like many homes built shortly after the turn-of-the-century, the Smith, Kivits, Wilson house defies listing as any certain architectural style. Most of the architectural elements are Colonial Revival, but there are other design influences.

When the home was built in 1906, the country was experiencing a wave of patriotic fever for a national style. Architects were also reacting to the Victorian love of excess in their buildings. The interest in the country's origins and the structures of its past had been sparked by the 1876 Centennial celebration and fanned by the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. The lines of homes became far more simple and designers borrowed freely from the Georgian, Federal and Dutch architectural styles of the past.

The Colonial Revival aspects of the home may be seen in the quoined windows, the broken pediment over the front porch stairs, the use of a fan window over the door and the two side lights (windows) on each side of the door. The massing of the home itself is very symmetrical, another indication of the Colonial Revival style.

The roof line is Dutch Colonial, which was a blending of Georgian, Dutch farm houses, and New England barns. The home has a gambrel roof, which allowed builders larger attic space without having to add another floor.

The front porch reflects other influences; that of the Craftsman movement, and a touch of the Prairie Style exposed by Frank Lloyd Wright. The porch hugs the ground and sweeps around the house with a low pitched roof and massive square piers of brick capped with carved stone capitals which divide the porch into masses of open airy space. The north end of the porch, under the porte cochere, has a high stone step. Of the wrong height for a person stepping up, it was designed to help those entering a horseless carriage.

The sidelights of the front door are of leaded glass, in a simple pattern. A true colonial home would have had small panes of glass. The leaded clear glass is more indicative of the Arts and Crafts movement.

The interior of the home also reflects the period's vogue of simplicity and openness. The rooms are large and lightfilled with molding far simpler than those of their Victorian predecessors. Each room is designed to meet specific needs of family living rather than those imposed by the conventions of society, like the formal parlor plus family parlors of the earlier Victorian homes.

The Smith, Kivits, Wilson home is a home designed for living. It met the criteria of a home reflecting the simplicity of the past while surrounding the family with the comforts of the present. It does so to this day.

Inside, the home's grand staircase is enhanced by a six foot stained glass window. Although not the original, the new window offers subtle hues of pink, blue, and green that harmonize with the new decor.

To the right of the entryway is a thirty foot living room featuring a mahogany and marble fireplace with a six foot high mantle. French doors to the east of the room lead to a sunken solarium that at one time was an outside sleeping porch.

The second floor holds five bedrooms, including a former maids' quarters that offers a private porch. All the bedrooms spoke from a central walkway which is encased on three sides by a banister and spindles. A small hallway and built-in wardrobes separate the two west-end bedrooms. The rooms feature oak woodwork which has been left in its natural finish since the home was constructed.

The third floor was originally a ballroom. Young children of the home's previous owners celebrated birthdays here, while their older siblings entertained with teen dances. During the Kivits' stay, some twenty-eight children lived in the Farrington Grove neighborhood—many of whom no doubt enjoyed the immense play area found here. A former storage room has been converted to a guest room.

The home's basement housed both a fruit cellar and wine cellar in its earlier days.

A cement and brick wall encloses a lovely backyard. A large goldfish pond—complete with waterfall—lies to the south. It remains, as it did in the early 1900's, a focal point of the grounds that has been improved with new flower gardens and flowering trees.

The house was built for John Lawrence Smith who was vice-president of the Highland Iron and Steel Company. The Smith's had one son, Kemper. They resided in the home for three years, moving to California in 1912.

That year, Albert Frances Kivits and his wife, Edithel Hardy Kivits, purchased the southside home. Albert, a native Terre Hautean, was engaged in a perishable wholesale food business here with his brother, William, from 1906-1949. Kivits Brothers was located on North Third Street and was the second oldest produce commission house in the State of Indiana.

Later, the brothers associated with Finer Foods Packing Corp.

and R.V.B. Corporation. Albert was an active member of the Elks Lodge, Knights of Columbus and a member of the Board of Directors of Terre Haute First National Bank.

Edithel was born in Mattoon, Illinois, in 1892 and moved to Terre Haute with her family at age 3. She served as chairman of various committees of the Women's Department Club and was also a member of the Fresh Air Mission and the local S.A.I. Music Sorority.

They raised two daughters. Jane, their eldest, was married in the home in 1936 with the reception held on the white awning-encased front porch.

Shortly after Albert's death in 1950, Mrs. Kivits sold the home to Dr. Fred Wilson and Mrs. Ruth Fuschs Wilson. A practicing cardiologist for 52 years, Dr. Wilson attended both undergraduate and medical school at Indiana University. Ruth was a registered nurse and worked in the surgery unit of St. Anthony's Hospital until its closing. They raised two daughters and one son.

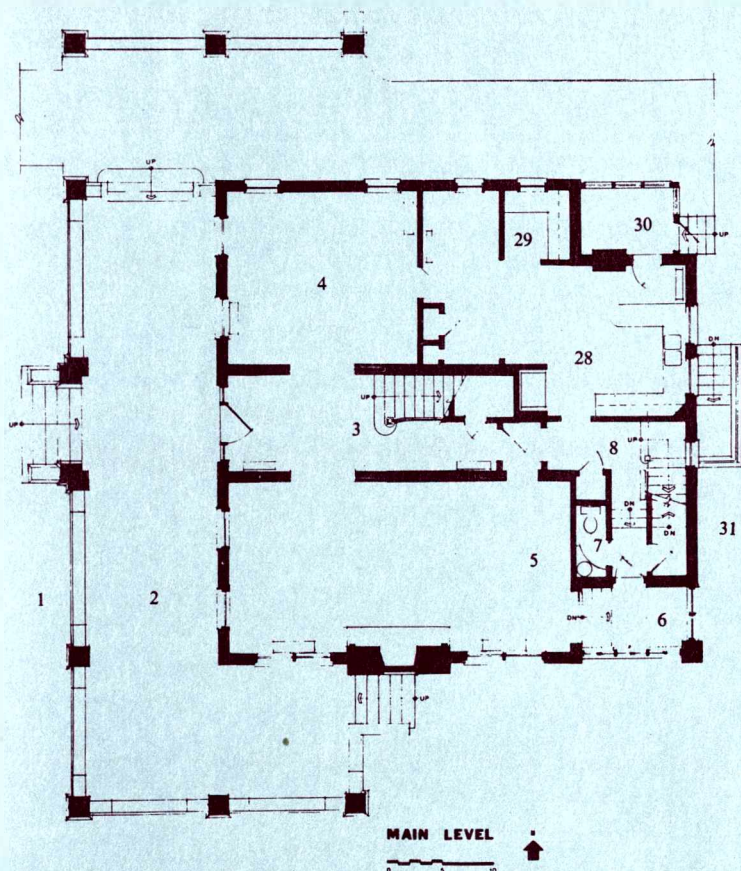

Because of Dr. Wilson's failing health, the couple sold the home in 1981 to Jerry Lewis, a local contractor.

The home was again sold in 1986 to its current owners, attorney James Bopp, Jr. and his wife, Christine Stanton Bopp. They reside there with their three young daughters.

President's Message

On behalf of the members of the Service League of Union Hospital, it is my privilege and pleasure to welcome you to our 1987 Designer Show House. We wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. James Bopp Jr. for allowing us to open their lovely home for public viewing. We trust you will enjoy the tour.

This is our eighth Show House opportunity allowing us to bring another significant Wabash Valley residence into the spotlight. Profits from our last seven show houses have enabled the Service League to contribute $134,850 for designated equipment and furnishings used by the Hospital. Your support of Service League programs has not only enabled our organization to be an effective hospital auxiliary, but has also helped our hospital acquire some of the latest, state of the art equipment, which will in turn help you, the public. The funds raised from this years Show House will go to providing equipment for the new Ambulatory Surgery Wing.

Through the hard work and dedication of our project co-chairman and League members, the cooperation of the Show House owners, the talent of our participating designers, and the support of our patrons, sponsors, advertisers, Show House visitors, and media, the Show House has become a Terre Haute tradition with a meaningful cause.

The mature plantings that exist give this home a sense of age and permanency. With pruning and care throughout the coming years, these plantings will continue to grow and add to the beauty and value of the home.

The plantings serve as a backdrop for the addition of an unlimited array of seasonal color. By the use of masses of flowering color, the first impression of this home comes alive. It not only becomes more noticeable to the passer-by, but also more inviting to family and friends.

We have decorated the large porch in a country as well as a city setting. The setting is informal. Iron benches with mahogany slats, do not require care, and weather like cedar. The children's section is the same. The east end of the porch has matching table and chairs, so as to view the garden. The small tables are cast aluminum.

Traditionally family rooms have been thought of as darker more heavy duty but, spring has sprung in Terre Haute. Lighter, more romantic colors are showing up on the forefront of leading furniture design galleries.

The room where we spend most of our relaxation time has a mixing of style and is more exciting, creative, cozy and comfortable. Exciting and artistic is the latest in family room style.

Just through the French doors and down two steps you enter the solarium which pulls in the same chintz as in the living room but accented with a burst of bright fun accent colors of sachet lavender, sunshine yellow and deep iris purple to create a "blooming" retreat for a quiet cup of tea and a good book.

Please notice the detail in this room. The brick wall of the home has been painted, the steps decorated, the grillwork painted and a punched up border to top the interesting shades. A chaise nestled in the corner with a convenient round table draped in stunning fabric adds the delightful spot to relax in a colorful hideway.

The spring flowers adorning the steps and hanging baskets are silk so no need to find a babysitter for watering when you want to get away. These pieces are individually potted so you can exchange them for mums, asters, and other florals for summer and fall. However, we recommend the spring look for winter and on those old gray days you can escape into a sunshine room of spring and bright colors.

Powder Room

Doors N Drawers
4216 Hulman Street

designed by:
Peggy DeCarolis

What a well used room for last minute details. Whether a quick look into the mirror before joining your guest, or a powder of the nose. Whatever preparation it may be, turns this unique room into one of the most useful rooms on the main floor without climbing a flight of stairs.

This is definitely a room of the past. Notice the rare large wood sliding door that slides between the walls. A great way to save space for the small room and to preserve the uniqueness of the past.

To update this room at an affordable price simply consists of using the existing well-structured vanity and resurfacing the frame work. Adding the new custom-made solid oak door front to the cabinet is a substantial savings in comparison to purchasing an entire unit.

Because of limitations of space a custom made unit over the stool is made to match the vanity. This is not only attractive but ideal for additional storage.

The new delicate choice of wallpaper gives this room a refreshing fragrance.

Added beauty of oak accessories will complete this unique little powder room.

Soft pastels flow up the staircase and culminate in the tranquil beauty of stained glass. Walls are covered in soft celadon silk, and accented by primrose pink carpeting. Shades of celadon and pink are delicately blended in upholstery and accessories. We invite you to pause, rest and enjoy the gentle heart of this genteel home.

Pastels abound and flowers bloom inside a delightful room to grow up in...

In keeping with her parents fondness of pastels, I chose to use bright white, soft pinks, blues, and greens. The feminine floral design of "Tiger Lilies" is from F. Schumacher Co. and Prelude Designs "Lynn Hollyn Garden Collection" and is featured throughout in wallcoverings and coordinate fabrics. Whimsical toys, prints, and accessories in the room are easily changeable at anytime for more "grown-up" appeal.

Lydia is just a "little girl" now, but as she grows her room will grow with her.

The Nursery and Closet

Heidi's Hideaway
102 Ohio Street
Rockville, Indiana 47872
designed by:
The Dodsons

Once upon a time there was a little Princess named Marguerite Grace Bopp. She lived in a castle with all her fairytale friends, Peter Rabbit, Benjamin Bunny and many more.

Every night before she fell asleep, her mother and father would tuck her into her canopy bed and read her The Tale of Peter Rabbit.

As the sun gleamed through the sheer batiste panels, it would wake her and her little friends. The nursery came alive with the Tea Rose floral walls and the pale plush carpet against the antique oak trim which enhanced the Country English room.

Cross-stitched designs line the walls showing the bunny characters and the love she is given. There she will live with her family and friends happily ever after.

Hidden in Princess Margot's closet are fancy dresses for balls and banquets. Baskets for gathering flowers on spring and summer days as well as more of her woodland friends. This is the closet her mother can store belongings neatly and safely out of little M's hands. An antique doll trunk displays quilts for warmth and toys for joy. This little world enhances Marguerite's Country English room.

"Katie's Quarters"

To enhance the cheeriness of Katie's room, the white walls are sponge painted with pink to give a spatterware appearance. And after the wood planked floor was very carefully restored by CHUCK CRISPIN, the perimeter of the floor was bordered with a hand painted pink ribbon flowing among wisps of petite flowers. At the windows, POPLAR FLOWER SHOP has filled the baskets and Katie's special garden box with dainty pink geraniums. All the furnishings in the room are an assortment of intriguing country antiques, some of which are miniatures and toys. On the old tool chest sets one of the complete special editions of the P. Buckley Moss collection of dolls, as well as on the walls are several beautifully matted and framed Moss prints. These are all compliments of RAINBOW ART AND FRAME SHOP. If Katie wants to look special anytime of day, she can pick from the precious selection of clothing displayed in her room. They are one of a kind, specially designed, but sewn by LIBBY MERCER. The petite hand smocked clothes and hand cross stitched sampler are from "THE SMOCKERY". While Katie tries on her clothes she can admire how pretty she looks in the lovely oval mirror that KASAMEYER GLASS, INC. added over the antique iron fireplace cover. Also to brighten her room, KLINE ELECTRIC donated the beautiful hanging center light fixture. And as a finishing touch, Katie's room is accented with fresh touches of white linens and laces, and an original sculpture.

Upon entering the backyard one finds the space is not overwhelming nor confining. Within the backyard, the wall creates the ideal area for the children to play. Combined with a beautiful lawn and low maintenance landscaping, this backyard can effectively adapt to the family's changing needs.

Walking across the lawn and stepping down, the evergreen hedge and limestone steps form a circular curve that creates this lower garden area. The enclosure and privacy combined with the simple use of color and form create a quiet and defined elegance.

The goldfish pools cast a soothing spell over the entire backyard. The sound of the water and the delight of the goldfish swimming within, complete a peaceful setting for the young and old.

We especially want to thank the many businesses and designers who made our Show House possible. All decorating expenses are borne by these people so that proceeds may go to support our benefit.

Many hours and ingenious ideas are donated by these talented people, and we hope you will patronize them for decorating advice. Feel free to contact any of the designers or businesses concerning the purchase of any items in the rooms.

A Message from the President

Welcome to our 1989 Designer Show Houses. With great courage and high expectations the members of the Service League of Union Hospital selected two homes for you to tour this year. We wish to thank Mr. & Mrs. Brian Conley and Mr. & Mrs. Charles Toth for allowing us use of their lovely homes.

This is our ninth biennial Show House and the first time we have presented two homes for your enjoyment. This has been a major undertaking that has required extra effort and co-operation from our participating designers, our home owners, and our league members. To date, this project has allowed the Service League to donate $175,850 to Union Hospital. Our funds this year will benefit the Intensive Care & Newborn Nursery areas of the hospital.

The Show House is a project of such a magnitude that it can be successful only with the cooperation of a vast network of individuals and groups who graciously lend their time and talents. It is truly a community affair that benefits each and every one of us who may at some time require the services of Union Hospital. We thank you for your support.

Linda Griffin, President
Service League of Union Hospital

History of the Conley House

2117 North 10th Street

A three story Collett Park residence built in 1901 is one of two homes selected for the 1989 Designers Show House. The house was the focus of the following article printed in the Terre Haute Gazette, December 14, 1901.

In the professors' row which is north Ninth and Tenth Street near Collette Park, one handsome new residence has been built which wonderfully improves the whole neighborhood. Prof. John B. Peddle, of Rose Polytechnic Institute has built this year an old style house which is nearly perfect as any house ever was. The credit for designing the house belongs to Mr. Herbert A. Foltz, a graduate of Rose, now living in Indianapolis. Mr. Foltz drew his plans to make the house resemble those in which our grandfathers and great-grandmothers lived. It is colonial and old English from a to z, from the basement to the roof. The house has been painted brown and yellow and the roof is tinted green. Martin, the local contractor, built the house. It has not long been finished and Mr. Peddle moved in soon after the institute opened.

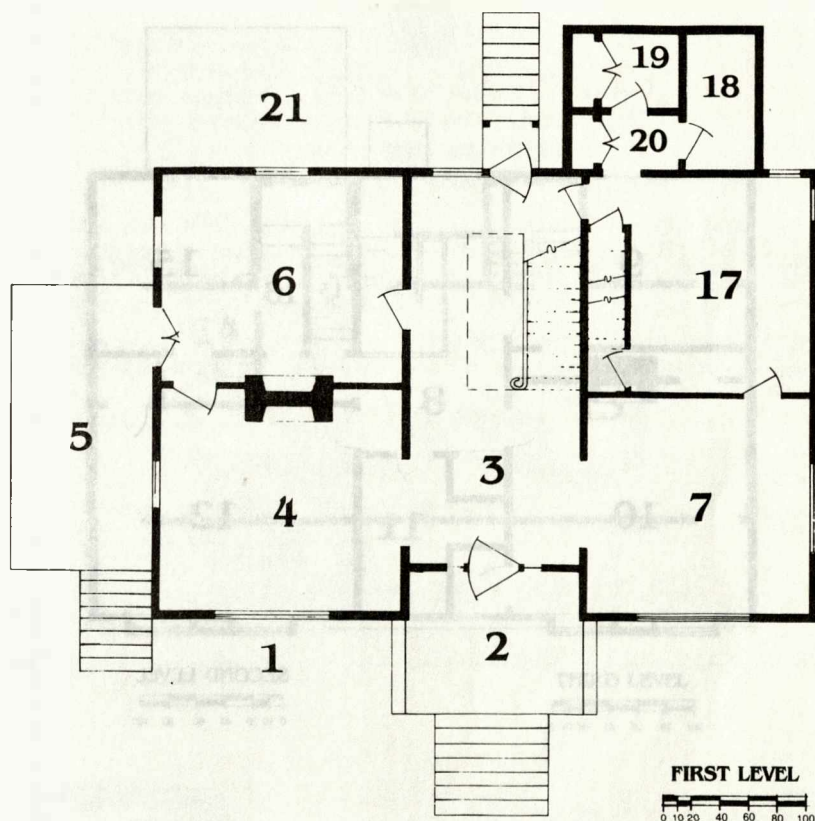

On the first floor are four rooms and a large hall, extending the length of the house. The hall opens to the front porch and directly to the rear by old Dutch doors, the upper half of which swings open, independent of the other half. North of the hall are the parlor and library, south are the dining room and kitchen. In the first named two rooms there are ancient fireplaces of pressed brick, very low and fitted with fire-dogs. The dining room extends to the front and is larger than the other rooms. The kitchen is just off the dining room and adjoining to the rear is a latticed porch. The hall and four bedrooms on the second floor correspond with the rooms below except for the fact that they are smaller and allow for a bathroom.

The trimming throughout the house is all white with the exception of the library which is in mahogany, and the hall which is in white and mahogany. The walls throughout are tinted blue except the library. Here an olive green makes a pretty contrast with mahogany wood. The house is heated with a hot water furnace and has both gas and electric lights. In the front rooms upstairs there are old English hanging windows which afford narrow window seats on the interior and relieve the monotony of the outside. The lower floors are hard wood and the second pine for carpets.

Professor and Mrs. John Peddle had two daughters, Juliet and Elinor who lived in the home until their deaths in 1979 and 1980 respectively. Juliet Peddle was a 1922 graduate of the University of Michigan, School of Architecture. She was one of only two women architects in the State of Indiana when she returned to Terre Haute in 1939. Locally, her projects included Crawford School, the Social Security Building at Meadows Center, and several renovated buildings at Rose Hulman Institute of Technology.

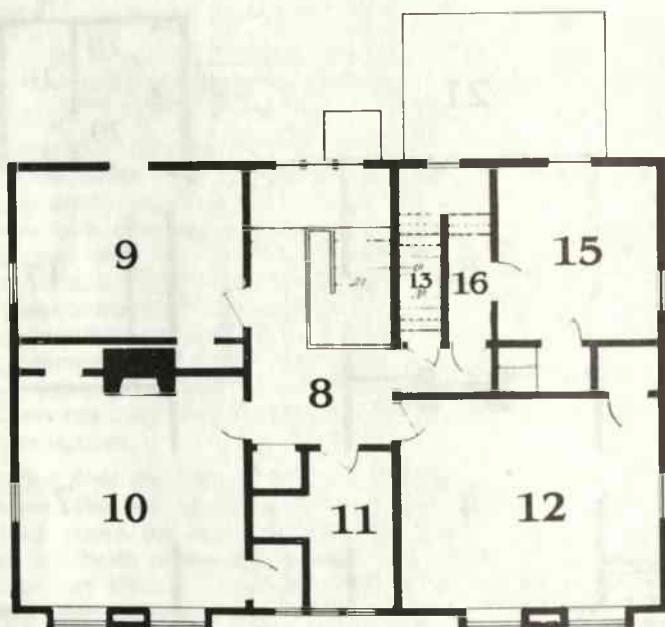

The home was purchased in 1981 by the current owners Brian Conley and his wife, Jeanne. They reside there with three young sons and infant daughter.

The renovations to date have consisted of; removal of an upstairs closet to enlarge a bathroom; creation of a larger kitchen by eliminating a wall that separated the butlers pantry from the kitchen, and subsequent modification of the back porch into a full bath and utility room.

Designed By: Hank Metzger

The landscaping of a house of this era did not typically have what we now call foundation plantings. Plantings of flowers and shrubs were moved away from the house to create gardens that could be viewed from the indoors as well as the outdoors.

In the design process it was our goal to create such gardens. By the use of hedges we have enclosed the lawn area and enframed the entrance to the home. The space that was created is now a part of the home's entrance rather than a front yard.

The garden brings together a variety of plant material, texture, color and form. The use of masses of plants provide a strong visual impact throughout each season. Not only is the garden a spring and summer garden, but a winter garden as well.

On both the north and south ends of the home two smaller garden areas evolved during the design process. The formal yet simple layout of these areas create an intimate and quiet enclosure. Thus, the entire front lawn has been utilized and a space created for private moments as well as for family enjoyment.

Although somewhat small for an old front porch, it still provides a very functional entrance for this lovely home. Rather than concentrating on furniture, we rely on plants and the refinished front door to beautify this area.

The Floors of the Conley Entry

The floors of the entry foyer of the Conley home are made of sugar maple, one of the hardest and most durable of indigenous hardwoods. The fine uniform texture of the wood lends itself well to applications of feature staining. The contours of the entry area are highlighted and given definition by the contrast between the natural 'butternut' tones of the maple and the distinctive 'rosewood' color of the stained strips. The floor is protected by three coats of high-sheen Woodline Satin Polyurethane. Refinishing of the floor was accomplished by Chuck Crispin and Marvin Gaddis of Hardwood Renovations. We would like to extend our special thanks to Floyd Lewis, Daryl Carter and Che Jordan Crispin for helping with the sanding and staining.

Bright sunny afternoons, warm starry nights, rainy days in fact can all be enjoyed from a screened porch. Step out into another time. One of leisure and grace. Willow furniture and plump pillows make for easy nesting. Bring out the rugged earthenware and the painted service pieces. Plenty of plants and flowers abound with the solace of a garden fountain. Indulge.

The den has been designed for the home office and man's reading room. The bookcases are contrast lined to bring in the blue accents for a trend toward masculinity and to pick up the blue and taupe architectural molding border that was used to accent the mantle area. The striae paper on the walls adds the taupe and blue theme. The Chippendale writing desk is coupled with a soft damask chair and the room is completed by a carved leg Chippendale wing chair with small footstool for reading and relaxing after a day's work at the office and the finishing of paper work at home.

Flowers, Flowers, Flowers! An English garden awaits the master and his lady in their bed chamber. Creamy honeysuckle and purple clemantis entwine with full-blown roses and phlox, spilling over onto a carpet the color of coralbells. The queen size bed is a linen bower all wrapped in Renaissance Italian lace. Neo-Classic elements in crystal, silver and stone enhance the old world charm of this retreat.

Pleasant to view, the soft paint of the wallpaper is highlighted by the use of lattice. The room takes on a peaceful garden affect. The fabric shower curtain and carpenters lace over the window and in the doorway continue the quiet refreshing look. The dainty little cupboard (painted by Hansel & Gretel) finishes this enjoyable experience.

Twin's Room

Vickie's Interiors
R.R. #13, Box 286
W. Terre Haute, IN
(812) 535-3705

Designed By: Vickie Gilmore

The soft tones of the wallpaper in this room are accented by a large colorful border. This border features a country village with herds of grazing sheep adding a touch of arcadian life to the room. The Lt. Moses Willard Lighting fixture adds an extra touch of whimsy.

The windows are covered with a functional mini blind, softened by a bandanna style valance. The valances and matching bedspreads are accented with blue at the hems.

A simple change in the trim and the nostalgic accessories used here will allow this room the flexibility to "grow" along with the twins. Its a place to build childhood memories as well as dream of days gone by.

One can almost picture Mother sitting in the comfortable paisley print chair, reading a quiet bedtime story from a family classic. All the while, her lively twins dream of "riding" off into the sunset on their rocking steeds, knowing that great adventure lies just ahead...

Designed By: Gregory B. Risley

This third floor area was extremely fun to create. If you notice the before pictures this attic was unfinished and it was Risley's pleasure to help design the finished product as you see it now. The suggestion was made to add a small powder room and bar area which would make the chimney a part of the architecture. Also, the small reading room at the far end was designed to double as a guest bedroom.

Please note the addition of the clear story window to help lighten the main living area. The sectional seating is arranged to work around the entertainment area. The game table was added for family enjoyment of games and cards alike.

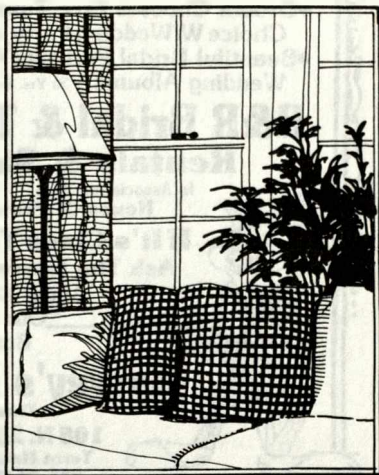

The evergreen, peach, mauve, and soft aqua tones help create a serene atmosphere for the special family times. Please note the soft throw swag above the windows and the pleasing flow of the room design. Risley's enjoyed the challenge of bare rafters and walls to a family living area for the Conley's.

A simple classic Waverly stripe wall covering will give 6-year-old Daniel a place to hang his baseball cap and glove throughout his busy growing years. The neutral caramel and white tones also work well with the varied styles of furniture used here. Daniel's toys, sports equipment, and accessories brighten his living quarters.

Faux finishes such as ragging, sponging, and imitation woods and stones were heavily used in the Victorian era. NewImage Designs has chosen to use sponge painting in rich shades of mauve, blue, and gold to lend a subtle textured look to the walls. A garden-like accent is achieved through detailed stenciling which creates a splash of color, giving an otherwise ordinary room a dramatic appearance.

Flowers and plants, beautifully arranged by Miller Floral, bring a feeling of warmth to the kitchen, while accessories from The Canister offer a cheerful finishing touch to the heart of the home.

We give a special thanks to Rainbow Art and Frame and The Porter Paint Co. for their contributions!

Want a bathroom that is sophisticated enough for guests, yet is easily maintained for the family? This is it!

Paisley and flowers in rich tones of taupe, blue, and burgandy are the basis of this bathroom on the house's main floor. The mirror repeats the same dark hunter green that is found in the wallpaper and provides an interesting accent. The valence and vanity skirt are in a coordinating fabric to soften the room's rather straight lines.

Organization is the key to this laundry room. Clothes are neatly sorted by colors in the laundry bin and ironing is a breeze with the easy to store ironing board. The wallpaper and border around the ceiling of this room helps this area continue the harmonious feeling from the hallway.

The back Landscape has been transformed into another "room" that serves many functions. What better way to lure the kids out of the house on nice days than to create a secure and fun play area for them outside. The patio is an extension of the indoor living space that is ideal for family cookouts, entertaining friends, or just a place to read the morning paper.

The addition of ornamental trees and shrubs add beauty and warmth to the area where one can view mother nature put on her year-round show. Incorporating the pond and natural stone with the plant material, one can find solitude in his own mini preserve.

History of the Toth House

2108 North 10th Street

The Collett Park home of Charles and Martha Toth is one of two homes selected for the 1989 Designers Show House.

In 1892, Marvered A. Howe purchased the two lots the house is built on from Josephine Collett for $800.00. Mr. Howe then built the two-story home that same year at a cost of $2,800.

Madeline Howard was the next owner and sold it to Clarence & Ella Reynolds who changed the single family dwelling to five apartments. After this conversion was completed, she continued to live on the lower level of the home.

David Crowden acquired the property in September 1975, and retained it as an apartment house. A devastating fire, resulting from unsafe wiring, occurred in January 1977. The family room floor was completely burned exposing the basement below. Also broken during the fire were three leaded stained glass windows above the stairway.

The house stood vacant and open until August 1977 when it was purchased by Charles and Martha Toth. The downstairs ceilings, damaged both from age and water damage by the fire, were all replaced. Exterior changes include new siding, roof, and replacement of the back porch. A new garage was recently built to replace the 3-car garage destroyed by the fire.

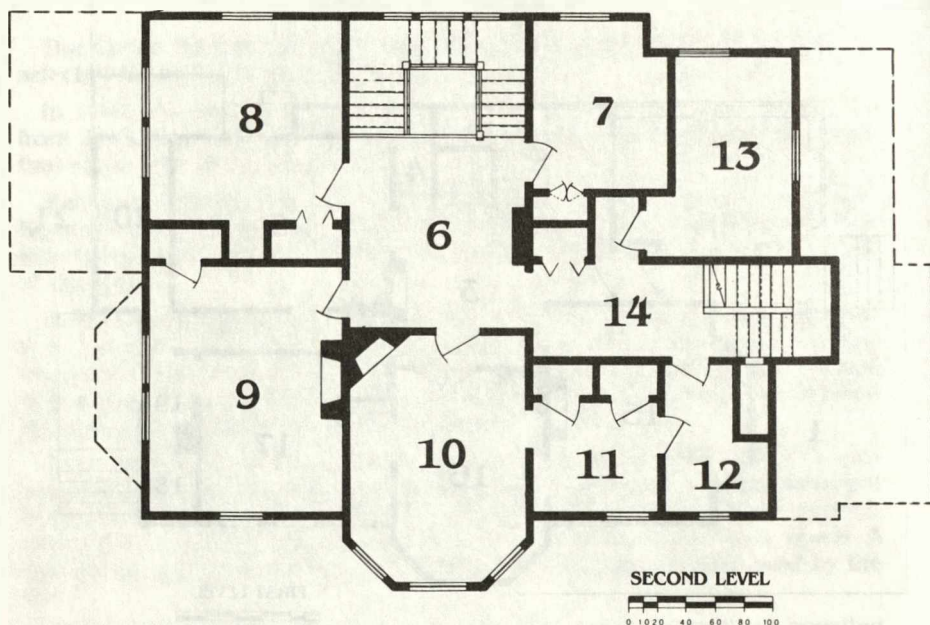

The first level of the Toth home begins with a large entry foyer boasting one of the homes six wood burning fireplaces. Three other fireplaces on the first floor are located in the family room, dining room, and living room. Bay windows complement the design of both the dining room and living room. Areas on the first floor also include the kitchen, half bath, and utility room. Branching off of the large upstairs foyer are the master bedroom with dressing area and full bath, two childrens rooms, a full bathroom and a study area for Mrs. Toth. The master bedroom and one of the boy's room feature the two remaining fireplaces. A stairway leading to the attic has been removed and the attic is used for storage only. Runners remaining from the stairway are still visible.

The Toths and their two sons, who attend Quabache Elementary School, have graciously let their home be used for the 1989 Designers Show House project.

Martin Landscape & Design Service
30 South 21st Street
Terre Haute, IN 47803

Designed By: James R. Martin

Our landscaping goal was to reflect the country English theme chosen for the Toth home. The decorative white fencing accented with a brick column entry way sets the stage for the landscape theme, while the selection of stone edging and ground covers bordering the fence reflects the English accent. Several floral berms echo the country English garden effect. The front lawn theme flows to our focal point, being the quaint country English patio on the south side of the Toth home. The choice of brick inlaid to a limestone pattern patio bordered with low lying boxwood hedging and accented with a decorative stone fountain and a country English settee complete the theme.

Please take a moment to view our pictorial presentation showing the stages of refurbishment for the construction and landscaping of the Toth home.

Because of its size, the fireplace and the beautiful open stairway, the focal point of this house is its foyer. Deep jewel colors line its every wall.

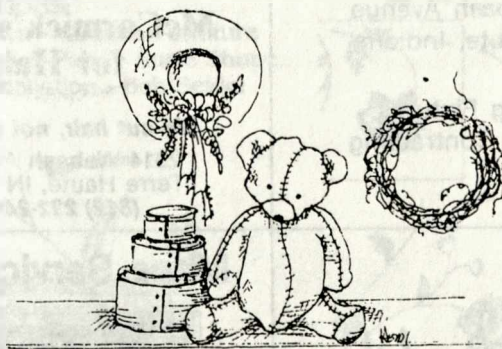

Many thanks to Charles Toth who stripped the dark varnish from the solid Oak woodwork. This provides an exquisite background for the rich English Country decor that brims with comfort and good looks.

The familyroom recalls the refined lifestyle of the 18th century English country manors. The design reflects the periods careful consideration of motifs such as the acanthus lobed, spiny leaves and long spiked flowers. The mood is set by the subtle blending of wine, federal blue, green, and oatmeal. A relaxing, personal retreat beckoning to you. Curl up in front of the fire with your favorite book and cup of tea.

The upper foyer brings warmth and charm, not only in the blending of quality pieces of furniture, but also with the added touch of family photographs.

Wall groupings and table top photographs framed in contemporary and traditional styling are intermingled with accent pieces both old and new.

The neutral textured wallpaper and matching border compliment this setting.

The Master Bedroom is designed in English Country, fresh and clean with just a hint of nostalgia. This look appeals to the "Country Romantic" in all of us. The shades of rose and blue are carried out from floor to walls and continue to the draped window treatments giving the feeling of the country romantic.

Designed for her pleasure, notice the unique use of floral and lace in this refreshing little hideaway. Devoted to the lady of the house, this room features a quiet corner where she might indulge herself in her own little dreams. In this strong and masculine home, this is her place.

A feminine touch is given to the room by the fabric ceiling held in place by intricately cut carpenters lace. The English Country scone illuminates the beautiful painting technique. Privacy may be found behind the hand painted dressing screen.

The modern English country house style with its 'lived-in' look is greatly in debt to the convergence of people in the period 1820-1845. Today formality is less fashionable, and because the prospect of it can cause apprehension for the designer, the direction of the Old English country house style in recent decades has been to create a sense of informality and facilitate a soft mixture of furniture, lighting, and accessories from different dates and styles, with willful contrasts between the informal and items more grand in design and intention.

This evolution of style in the past half-century is a distinctively twentieth-century affair, the product of contemporary changes, pressures and attitudes, but once its intentions are understood the parallel with the old world is striking. Enjoy!

The appearance of this room depends not only on the personality of two boys, but their father's as well. Masculinity with a touch of class is impressed upon one as he/she enters the room. Semi-heavy moldings traditionally encompass the room both as a crown on the ceiling and a base board around the floor. Polished brass and chrome interfuse as twin lavatory faucets mounted on a laminate top uniquely trimmed with a beveled edge.

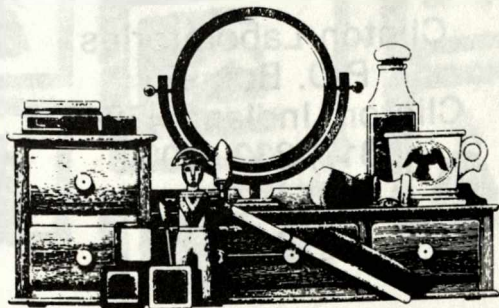

Above the vanity is a frameless mirror that visually expands the room as well as reflects the aesthetically refined colors of grey and burgundy paisley wallpaper.

Enclosing the shower opening is a polished brass door that bi-folds for functional entry.

This bathroom is a father and son reunion for any age!

Variations on the theme of classical traditional styling create different moods, often in a formal vein. The living room style and color scheme was selected to fit the individual needs and compliment the personal taste of Mr. & Mrs. Toth. The dignified living room welcomes visitors with colors of crimson maple, old gold and verde. European antique inspiration is reflected in curvilinear lines and exquisite details on paired chairs, console and connoisseur's cabinet. With grace and tastefulness the essence of formality can be achieved in a variety of fashions. This "relaxed" approach makes a room a joy to live in as well as to share proudly with guests.

In the English tradition, a variety of patterns have been used to create the feeling that the room evolved over many years.

The Toths will enjoy a family dinner in their newly designed Kitchen.

A large English border encircles the room with a paisley wallcovering below. The windows are accented by chinz balloon shades that can be pulled closed to allow privacy or opened for a sunny cup of morning tea.

The counter top is a Jade faux marbled enhanced with oak trim. Vegetables and fruits warm the walls in reproduction museum prints of the early 1800's.

Tucked away in a pickled cabinet, a collection of porcelain Bistroware line the shelves making the overall result appear effortless and natural.

The Powder Room in this lovely old home was in great need of renovation. Being the only restroom on the main floor, this area must be functional as well as useful.

The beauty of the wood is this home provided an excellent background for decoration. Using solid oak wood cabinets is an attractive way to update the powder room. With added oak accessories and a few fancies, we can restore the past with a new life and beauty for this 1892 home.

The Service League members will be available to help you select from a wide array of crafts and artistry. You will find the names of many local talents among the interesting items displayed, and, of course, all proceeds will also apply toward the purchase of equipment for the Newborn Nursery.

To make your day complete, treat yourself to a little extra time for lunch. It is being served each day, Monday through Friday, 11:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. So meander back across Tenth Street to the Conley Home for a delicious lunch.

Thank you for attending our 1989 Designers Show House. We are grateful for your support in our effort to provide better health facilities of Union Hospital to better serve the community needs.

We especially want to thank the many businesses and designers who made our Show Houses possible. All decorating expenses are borne by these people so that proceeds may go to support our benefit.

Many hours and ingenious ideas are donated by these talented people, and we hope you will patronize them for decorating advice. Feel free to contact any of the designers or businesses concerning the purchase of any items in the rooms.

Proceeds to Benefit Newborn Nursery and Newborn Intensive Care Unit

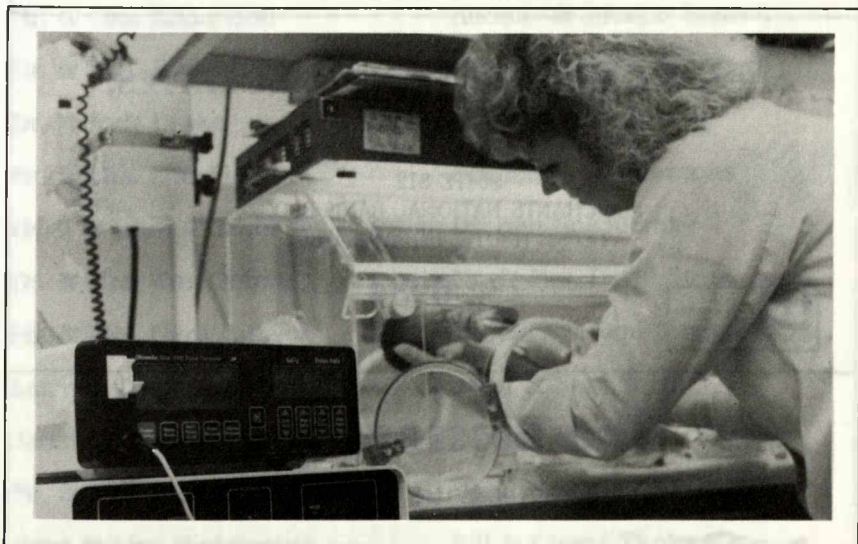

All funds raised from the 1989 Desingers Show House will go toward equipment for the Nursery and Newborn Intensive Care Unit at Union Hospital. These equipment needs include:

APNEA MONITORS: These machines, when attached to a baby, alert the care giver if there is too long a time period between breaths. Some ill or very small newborns are at a higher than average risk for apnea, or lack of breathing.

JAUNDICE METERS: These machines provide a way to test for the amount of bilirubin present in the baby's skin. The reading reflects a blood level without actually having to remove any blood from the baby.

NEONATAL MONITORS: These machines provide a graphic display and a digital readout of the baby's heart and respiratory rate. This information helps care providers know how well babies are doing without disturbing them.

PULSE OXIMETERS: This is a non-invasive method of monitoring how much oxygen is present in a baby's blood. It also tells the heart rate and how much oxygen is being breathed in by a baby attached to the oximeter.

RADIANT WARMERS: These provide overhead warmth to newborn babies. Warmers have glass sides and their height is designed so that physicians and nurses are able to easily observe and work babies using the warmers. It is very important that newborn or sick babies be kept warm enough so that the energy they need to recover from birth or illness will not be wasted trying to get warm.
